A commercial cab driver, and a member of the local Nigeria Vigilante Group were killed in separate attacks around Monguno town of Borno State as Boko Haram members continued to force locals in the area to join their terror group, security sources and witnesses have said.

On Friday, a cab driver was waylaid and killed by the terrorists in Ladi-Dumba village on the way to Monguno. Local vigilante operatives who picked the remains of the driver said he was beheaded. Ladi-Dumba is located in the east of Gudumbali, the headquarters of Guzamala local government.

Just as the people were trying to get over the gory murder of the taxi driver, the people of Monguno woke up to yet another gory incident of killing when they found the body of a member of the Vigilante group in the pool of his own blood as he was brutally killed by suspected Boko Haram terrorists who visited parts of the town late Friday night.

Abbas Gava, the spokesman of the Vigilante Group of Nigeria in Borno State confirmed this incident to LEADERSHIP Sunday in Maiduguri.

"The last two days have been of very terrible experience to us, members of the Vigilante group," Gava said. "One of our members in Monguno was slaughtered like an animal today. He was slaughtered the same way a taxi driver was killed on Friday morning." Boko Haram terrorists are on rampage again and forcing innocent villagers to join them as they have lost a large chunk of their members to recent raids by soldiers on some of their camps".
