① Last week, the people of Unguwuwan Uku in Gombe state were alerted to a fracas and discovered the most gruesome and shocking scene of a woman who had allegedly beheaded her two-year-old son. The woman (name withheld) was met with bloodied hands and clothes when neighbours decided to check and see what the commotion was all about. What made them more curious, was that she was allegedly trying to secretly dispose of the toddler's head when she was apprehended, and a search led to the shocking discovery of the headless toddler.

During the interrogation, the young mother admitted that she had killed the boy by mistake after he had bitten her hard on her nipple. Investigations are still ongoing to unravel this case.
