

Igu stated that her fear became worse when she saw a corpse by the path inside the pumpkin vegetable farm, adding that she kept running fast praying that God will save her from the danger she was in.

“The corpse had no head and breasts. I kept running until I got out somewhere around Biazyn area in Kubwa, which was far off from my school which is at Phase 4. I have been hearing of ritualists, but I never thought it would ever happen to me. I still do not know how I got to that area with the bike man.

“The only thing I could remember was that when he picked me, I noticed that the seat of his bike was dirty and I told him to clean it. He cleaned it with his handkerchief. I did not know if there was anything in the handkerchief that made me lose my senses. It was when my husband called me that I regained my senses,” she said.
