

Man Stabs Another To Death Over N50

BY OGUNTADE ISMAILA, Lagos.

The operatives of Isheri Osun Divisional Police Station of Lagos State Police Command have arrested a man who stabbed another man to death over N50 balance in Lagos.

The incident happened on Wednesday at Isheri Oshun area of Lagos where they resided.

Eye witness accounts revealed that the suspect allegedly bought an item worth N50 and gave the victim N100 and asked for N50 change. While the victim was looking for change, the suspect became angry, claiming that the victim was delaying and wasting his time and that reportedly caused a disagreement between them and in the process, the suspect stabbed the victim on the head with broken bottle and the victim slumped, before he could be rushed to the hospital he was already dead. The doctors only certified him dead at the hospital and the corpse was deposited at the mortuary.

LEADERSHIP Weekend gathered that after the incident, the suspect attempted to escape but the people around held him and handed him over to the police at Isheri Oshun Division.

Meanwhile, the incident became the talk of the town amongst Isheri Oshun residents, as people were seen gathered in groups discussing the incident and many were afraid to talk to the press over fear of being arrested by the Police
