

We Have Clues On Killers Of Anambra YPP Ward Chair—Police

BY OKECHUKWU OBETA, Awka

The police in Anambra State have gotten clues on the suspected killers of the chairman of the Young Progressives Party (YPP) in Nanka Ward 1, Orumba-North local government area, Mr Joe Moghalu.

The spokesperson of the police command, deputy superintendent of police, DSP, Ikenga Tochukwu, who made the disclosure on behalf of the commissioner of police (CP) yesterday assured that the hoodlums must be tracked down and be made to face the wrath of the law.

He quoted CP Aderemi to have described the killers of the YPP chieftain as "cowards who have murdered sleep", and vowed that the culprits must be rounded up and made to face the full consequences of their actions according to the law.

"They (killers of the YPP chieftain) might think they have committed a perfect crime and that they would get away with it but they delude themselves," he said.

LEADERSHIP gathered that Moghalu was shot dead by some hoodlums after he finished a meeting with Hon Chinwe Nabuife, member representing Orumba-North and Orumba-south federal constituency in the National Assembly, but, Appeal Court affirmed the annulment of her victory and a re-run election ordered by the Anambra State National Assembly Election Petition Tribunal in some polling units in Nanka ward in her constituency.
