

Two policemen killed in Port Harcourt shooting

By Clarice Azuatalam,
Port Harcourt

TWO policemen were reportedly killed in Diobu area of Port Harcourt yesterday during a gun duel with suspected cultists.

The Nation gathered that the policemen were reportedly killed while trying to accost a cult group, "The Icelanders." The group was going for an undisclosed mission at Emenike Junction of Mile One area of Diobu.

In the resultant shoot-out the two policemen were reportedly killed.

During the shoot out, there was panic in the area as many church-goers either returned home while those already in their churches remained till they confirmed that the things were alright.

A security source confirmed the incident to The Nation.

The Nation further gathered that the Icelanders were suspected to be on vengeance mission since the cult group working with the Deywell cult group had succeeded in chasing away the Deegbam cult group from Diobu.

Icelanders is also said to be on the side of Deegbam group, hence the decision to go and fight for the group.