

Robbers kill police officer

A POLICE inspector was yesterday killed by robbers who invaded a company at Ilupeju, Lagos, and carted away an undisclosed sum of money.

Two others, a student and a female trader were injured when they were hit by stray bullets.

The deceased, it was learnt, was killed when he and other policemen attempted to stop the robbers from robbing the company.

They were said to have on receipt of a distress call, rushed to the company in an L300 Mitsubishi bus and took cover behind the rear gate of the Palmgrove Estate.

The inspector was said to have been shot when he tried to join his colleagues who had already taken position around the company.

Lagos State Command spokesman Olubode Ojajuni, a Superintendent of Police, confirmed the incident.

Three-year-old boy drowns in sewage pit