for safety as the guns boomed.

The fleeing students and members of staff, it was gathered, trekked to the Expressway, a distance of about two kilometres, in search of vehicles.

Commercial vehicles avoided the campus and Ijagun village. The body of the dead was abandoned in front of one of the students' hostel called "Aso Rock" as at noon.

"It was hellish and frightening. One person was killed. We were in our classes receiving lectures when we began to hear sporadic gun shots. They said cultists are at it again, so, everybody ran out of the class, including our lecturers. It was a huge commotion as there were no vehicles around. Frightened cab operators had fled too. I trekked to the Expressway before I could pick a cab to Ijebu-Ode," a student said.

The university's spokesman, Mr. Gbenga Omilola, a lawyer, denied that TASUED students were involved in the disturbance.

He said the fracas occurred in Ijagun village and involved persons, who stormed the village from outside.
