

Two students killed at OOU

IT was just another Saturday morning last weekend when two students of the Olabisi Onabanjo University (OOU) were killed. The sordid event happened on Mariam Iyalaje Street, off Campus Road. It was about 10.00am

The neighbourhood boys, largely students, had just finished playing an early morning game of football and were relaxing on the street when three unidentified, but suspected cultists walked by, pulled out guns partially covered in clothes and ran after their two targets.

Eye witnesses said the scene could pass for another friendly rough chasing among students but those who saw the guns first quickly took to their heels.

In the confusion that followed, two male students were fired at, at very close range - one in the stomach and the other in the back. The assailants left the scene on
