The police in Delta State have arrested two persons in connection with the death of abducted Asaba-based businessman, Dim Maxwell Obiajulu.

Obiajulu, the owner of Obilinks Petroleum Ltd, was abducted recently in Asaba, the state capital, on his way to work.

Police spokesman Charles Muka confirmed the arrest.

He said the victim's decomposing body was discovered in a bush on Ibusa Road.

Sources said the kidnappers collected N12 million from the victim's family.

But, the police denied that any ransom was paid.

According to Muka, the police arrested Namdi Agochi, 29, and Phillip Nwosa, 28.

He said the suspects confessed complicity in the crime.

Muka said Agochi confessed he was the owner of the phone used to contact the victim's wife, adding that he gave the phone to Nwosa.

The spokesman said they would soon be charged to court.
