ANOTHER explosion rocked Maiduguri, the Borno State capital, yesterday, killing a police inspector and two civilians near Gwange cemetery.

The incident happened after the policeman had conveyed those injured by unknown gunmen to the University of Maiduguri Teaching Hospital.

It was gathered that on returning from the hospital, some explosives that were suspected to have been locally made were denoted, killing the Police Inspector.

The explosive also damaged some parts of the fence of the Gwange cemetery, which attracted people to the scene.

Police Commissioner Micheal Zuokumor told reporters that the Police received a distress call about the killing of some civilians by unknown gunmen at London Ciki.
