

Boko Haram kills former council chairman

By Joseph Abiodun, Maiduguri 05/02/2012 00:00:00

Just three days after burying his father, a former chairman of Damboa Local Government in Borno State, Alhaji Lawan Kabu, has been shot dead in Damboa. He was killed on Friday night by unknown gunmen suspected to be members of the Islamic sect, Boko Haram.

The gunmen struck in his family compound at about 9pm. Three other persons were critically injured in the attack.

They are now receiving treatment at the Damboa General Hospital.

Kabu had gone to the town to attend the third day prayer session in memory of his father.

He was at different times chairman of Damboa Local Government, Commissioner and special adviser in the administration of the immediate past governor of the state, Alhaji Ali Modu Sheriff.

He was laid to rest yesterday in accordance with Islamic rites.

Governor Kashim Shettima and members of his cabinet yesterday visited Damboa to commiserate with the family of the late Kabu.

The governor described Kabu's death as very unfortunate and a great loss to the people of the local government area and the state as a whole.

He prayed for the repose of the soul of the deceased.

Alhaji Kabu is the latest member of the political elite killed in the state by the sect.

On January 28 last year, Boko Haram members shot dead the governorship candidate of the All Nigeria Peoples Party (ANPP) in the state, Alhaji Modu Fanami Gubio .

Gubio was on his way to his father's house at Shehuri North when he was attacked.

If they refuse to expose them, the monster they created to embarrass Jonathan will consume them without being able to achieve their goal in the larger Nigeria

I think that is better, bcos the Man is likely to be one of the innitiators of the so called sect. Let other innitiators speak out now, otherwise these stupid boys will silent them all one by one,
