“Men armed with explosives assaulted a primary school, a police station and two telecommunications installations, setting them on fire. We heard that there were some attacks in Fika by suspected Boko Haram terrorists. They attacked two telecommunication masts, a police station and a primary school,” said Capt. Lazarus Eli, the military spokesman in Yobe State.

A witness said he saw the bodies of two policemen carried out of the burning police station, but Eli was unable to confirm the report. The military spokesman added that troops were deployed in the city to contain the violence. Fika is 170 km from Damaturu, the Yobe State capital.

According to local sources, the attack took place around 4:30 a.m.

“They threw explosives and fired gunshots at their targets, setting them ablaze, and fled after the attack,” said Tanimu Mani. “Soldiers who arrived in the town went inside the burnt police station and brought out the bodies of two policemen killed in the attack,” he said.

Another resident, Hassan Gaji, a student, said he had heard blasts and gunshots during his early morning prayers. “They were shooting seriously for about one hour,” he said, adding that the town had been taken over by police and soldiers.

Also yesterday, Kano State Police Command arrested 25 suspected Boko Haram militants over the killing of a police officer in the state on Saturday.

Commissioner of Police Ibrahim Idris said the attack at the Anguwar-Ukwu area of the city occurred shortly after

The Government should allow reporters to publish the identity of boko haram victims. It goes a long way to see the trend their of act and protect other would be victims. I am making these plea because the incident that occurred in Kano happened in my neighbourhood. The two persons killed are all Easterners, one is uche a spare sparts trader and the other person is equally from the same area but I don't know his name.
