Murder of 25-year- old graduate sparks anger in Delta

Posted by: Shola O'Neil in News 14 hours ago

Controversy has trailed the alleged killing of a 25-year-old Microbiology graduate of the Delta State University (DELSU), Abraka, Miss Radah Elsie Agbaje, at Boji-Boji Owa in Ika North East Local Government Area of the state.

The victim was allegedly killed in the night of October 10, around Meme Street, barely weeks after she graduated with a second class upper degree from DELSU.

Her mother, Mrs. Rose Dolore Ironsi, said: "My daughter was stabbed all over her face. Her eyes were battered; she was stabbed in the eye. Her jaw was slit; they used a weapon to cut her chest."

Our investigation showed that her death has pitted her parents against the Owa-Uyibo Police Division in the state over perceived shoddy handling of the case.

It was learnt that Miss Agbaje was sleeping in a room in her aunt's home when her killers broke in through the roof and murdered her in the presence of an eyewitness, who was sleeping in the room with her.

Speaking with our reporter, her mother, Mrs. Ironsi, lamented that the police failed to quiz the witness, with whom the deceased had a running battle before her death.

Mrs. Ironsi was also unimpressed with the armed robbery theory of the police, stressing that her late daughter's three mobile telephones, those of the witness and other valuables were not left intact in the house.

She said: "According to the suspect (name withheld), who share the same room with my daughter and was on the same bed with her the day she was murdered, the incident started about 2am.

"She said they were armed robbers. She said they were two gunmen. She said they beat them up. I asked her if they beat them with a gun, she said no that they flogged them."
