Poly student held for alleged murder

Posted by: Basirat Braimah in City Beats 2 days ago

A 21-year old student, Timilehin Ologunlagba, has been arrested by the police for allegedly killing a fellow student, Adeyemi Adeeso (20).

The suspect, an undergraduate of Gateway Polytechnic in Igbesa, Ogun State, allegedly killed Adeeso outside the campus on August 11.

He was said to have stabbed his victim to death.

The late Adeeso, who lived at Owu-Ikosi, Epe Local Government Area of Lagos State with his parents, was a student of Business Administration.

Sources said the suspect and three others accosted the late Adeeso, saying he was going to give him a mark on his body. The late Adeeso tried to run away but they chased him and when they got him, they stabbed him with a knife.

In an interview with The Nation, the bereaved father, Mr. Adedoyin Adeeso, said he learnt about the incident through his guardian.

He said: "I was informed by his guardian who told me that he was found a few metres away from the campus. He was rushed to a nearby hospital, where he died two hours later."

He said both Ologunlagba and his son were only mates and not friends, adding: "So, I keep wondering the kind of incision he wanted to make on my son's body, which eventually resulted in his death. I miss my confidant because he was my first and only son. My son was calm and gentle and could not hurt anybody."

"I do not know what he would have done to them. I need justice for my son and that is why I want the police to do a proper job. They should bring the killers of my son to book."

"Ologunlagba is alleged to be a strong member of Airlord confraternity. This is a known fact on the campus. He should assist investigators in arresting the other members of his gang who are at large."
