The fight, which started at a beer shop opposite the university in the afternoon, took the life of the victim, who was said to be a former student of the university.

Sources said the victim, who was believed to be a member of another cult group, was at the scene of the clash for recreation.

The late Yahaya sustained several machete cuts from four members of a rival group and died before help could come.

It was also gathered that two of his friends, who sustained injuries during the fight, were receiving treatment at a hospital at Agbowo.
