Two robbery suspects killed in Ekiti

THE police in Ekiti State yesterday killed two robbery suspects after a shoot-out with operatives of the Special Anti-Robbery Squad (SARS) on Ilawe-Ikere-Igbara Odo road.

The bodies were paraded at the state police command headquarters on Iyin Road before they were conveyed to the mortuary.

The suspects, who were four in a car, were stopped by SARS men for a search but they reportedly opened fire on the policemen.

From Odunayo Ogunmola, Ado-Ekiti

Two of them fled into the bush; the remaining two continued to engage the policemen in a gun duel.

One of the deceased, whose name was given as Ojo Sunday, allegedly specialised in attacking heavy duty vehicles.

He was said to have killed a trailer driver recently and has been on the police's wanted list.

Police spokesman Alberto

Adeyemi said Sunday escaped from police custody last year.

Weapons found on them, according to Adeyemi, include a Russian style single barrel pump action, 25 cartridges, Bournvita cocoa drink, and some money.

The spokesman said Ojo recently attacked a trailer driver, but was caught during an investigation.

He added: "Ojo escaped on October 1, last year, by breaking the cell at night and we have been on his trail.

But it was when the body was brought here that we were able to identify him and his accomplice.

"This year, Ojo and his accomplice, Michael Adediji, robbed a trailer and sold about 600 bags of cements in Akure.

"We were able to recover them and we have been looking for them and other members of the gang because the vehicle they robbed is here with us."
