Bricklayer drowns in stream

Posted By: Precious Igbonwelundu on: September 01, 2015 In: City Beats No Comments

The body of a bricklayer was yesterday recovered from a stream in Magodo Phase II by officials of the Lagos State Emergency Management Agency (LASEMA).

He was said to have gone to the stream for a bath after close of work at a construction site at Magodo waterside on Sunday evening.

It was gathered that the deceased simply identified as Abdullahi got drowned on the stream.

His fellow workers reportedly became worried after waiting for him for long and contacted emergency workers.

The Nation gathered that the emergency workers’efforts to rescue him on Sunday night failed. They returned to the scene yesterday and fished out his body.

It took a combined team of Lagos State Emergency Management Agency (LASEMA) officials, police and local divers to recover the body about 4:30pm.

LASEMA General Manager, Michael Akindele said the body has been deposited in a morgue.

The police, he said, would investigate to ascertain the cause of death, appealing to developers to monitor their workers closely to forestall such incidence.

“LASEMA received distress call at about 6:45pm on Sunday of a young artisan working at a construction site by Magodo waterside who drowned in a stream.

“Our response team searched through the night and continued Monday till his body was recovered at about 4pm.

“The body was handed over to State Embalmmnt and Mortuary Unit (SEMU) by LASEMA officials with police officers from Magodo police station. The police will carry out further investigation on the incident,” he said.
