14 feared killed as robbers attack two banks in Osun with dynamite

Posted By: Adesoji Adeniyi on: February 13, 2016 In: News No Comments

Three members of a robbery gang that attacked two new generation banks in Eko-Ende road in Ikirun, the headquarters of Ifelodun local government area of Osun State, were yesterday shot dead by the police.

Unconfirmed reports said that no fewer than ten passers-by were killed during the gun duel between the robbers and the police.

Although four police men were said to have been killed by the robbers but Osun police spokesperson, Sade Odoro, said only one officer was lost during the operation.

People were in fear for about an hour that the robbers operated, according to a source, who preferred anonymity.

Confirming the incident,Osun Police Commissioner, Mr. Kola Sodipo, said the heavily armed gang attacked the banks around 4.05 pm.

The police boss said that a member of the gang was arrested while the rest of them escaped with their loot.

He also disclosed that the operational vehicle of the armed gang was demobilised by the police.

However, Sodipo advised the members of the public to report anyone with bullet wounds to the nearest police station, assuring that the police was on top of the security of the state.
