

Akwa Ibom boy’s mysterious death

Happiness has taken a break from the family of Utibeabasi Sampson. The 14-year-old son died mysteriously after an outing with seven children between the ages 14 to 16 at Pinnacle hotels, Edet Akpan Avenue Uyo, Akwa Ibom State.

According to a family source, who spoke with our correspondent on the condition of anonymity, the 14-year-old boy was lured to the hotel under the pretext of a get-together party only for him to be left dead in the pool.

The source said the suspects are all students of a popular secondary school in Uyo, the Akwa Ibom State capital and are children of influential people in the state.

She explained that the suspects were about leaving the hotel without their victim when the gateman who noticed they were eight when they came in, accosted them and asked them of the eighth person.

Her words: “The heartless demons mentioned casually that he may still be in the pool and laughed. Even if this boy drowned, why didn’t they raise the alarm and seek for help? Where were the staff? The life guard said he went to ease himself, for how long?”

The source condemned the police for allegedly trying to cover up the murder of Sampson, explaining that when the case was transferred to the state police headquarters, Ikot Akpan Abia, the parents of the accused transported the children in their private cars instead of police vans.

She also accused the police of allowing the hotel to still be open for business instead of being cordoned off and sealed for investigation.

She said: “In saner climes, the hotel management and staff would be investigated, but they are still going about their normal businesses. The Nigerian police force is trying to play games with the boy’s family.

“Why didn’t the hotel staff chase away seven underage children dressed all in black? A boy that drowned did not swallow water but had blood and foam spewing from his mouth; there was no alarm raised by his purported friends. The hotel staff claim not to have heard or seen anything.

“I want the whole world to hear of the mysterious death of this bright, promising boy whose life was cut short because he refused to be initiated to a cult by seven heartless spawns of the devil.

“Their parents are fighting tooth and nail to make sure their children are freed while Utibeabasi is lying cold in the morgue, his family in tears. His mother is inconsolable.

“The whole circumstances smirk of foul play. May Jehovah the almighty God, the all seeing, fight for us. Rise up in your anger, O Jehovah. Stand up against the fury of our enemies. Awake for us and demand that justice is done.”

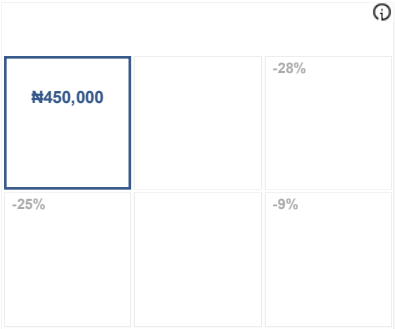

When contacted, the state’s Police Public Relations Officer (PPRO), ASP Cordelia Nwawe, said the command is on top of the situation.

Her words: “Police is looking into the matter. Investigation is ongoing.”
