gunmen have again attacked Godogodo in Jema'a Local Government of Kaduna State, killing six farmers.

The community was attacked two weeks ago. Eleven persons were killed and two villages burnt. It was alleged that same people were behind both incidents.

The villagers claimed the gunmen said their villages were now grazing reserves, and wanted them to vacate.

A journalist, who was an early caller to the village, said: “Elders and relatives of the deceased gave their names as: Monday Hamza, 24, married with three children; Toma Masara 35, married with three children; Chaka (Waje) Rubutu, 26, married with four children; Linus (Golkofa) 20, married with two children; Julius (Golkofa) 19, married with a child; Boboo Okocha, 18, and Sambo (Golkofa) 17.

Another elder said: "Godogodo is full of refugees because it is a bigger village, close to the expressway, with a better security. I can assure you there is no day someone is not killed by Fulani herdsmen around here."

"After the attack, they would cut down crops or herd in their cattle to eat the growing crops. There will be hunger this year in these villages. What they are saying is that our villages are now cattle grazing reserves and they want everybody out.

"Last Saturday, these young men that were killed went out as a group to their farms. We were told that armed herdsmen attacked them on their farms, and a few escaped with bullet wounds. A search party on Sunday found them ridden with bullets and machetes' cuts. They were dead.

"The police have taken their bodies to Kafanchan mortuary."

Police spokesman Aliyu Usman confirmed the murder, saying arrests have been made.

"Yes, it is true some people were killed in Godogodo on Saturday. There was tension in the place, but we have deployed our men in the affected areas and we are on top of the situation. We have made arrests, and the suspects are being investigated at our Kafanchan Division.

"We advise residents to be cautious when they move; they should also report suspicious movements to the police,” he said.
