SUSPECTED herdsmen have killed three persons in Dogon Daji community and torched part of Antang Village, near Godogodo in Jema'a Local Government Area of Kaduna State.

The Godogodo axis has been under intense siege of alleged herdsmen since July.

According to the residents of the affected villages, the itinerant herdsmen have been forcing them out of their communities, claiming that their farmlands have been designated as Grazing Reserves by the government.

The council's Acting Chairman Humble Katuka who confirmed the raids, said that only two were killed in Dogon Daji and two houses burnt in Antang.

He said: "Report reaching me said that two people were killed in Dogon Daji, and then they burnt two houses in Atang.

"They diverted the attention of the police and soldiers stationed in Godogodo and sneaked to these areas to wreak havoc. But, security have been beefed up and I shall personally go there later to inspect what has happened."

However, a source from Dogon Daji said: "This morning (yesterday), a group of herdsmen attacked our village (Dogon Daji). They killed three people. And injured about six others. I am not sure, because we have to move out women and children. Then, the armed herdsmen moved to Antang and burnt part of the village and injured some people."

Last Saturday, Godogodo, which has been hosting thousands of displaced persons, was attacked by some armed herdsmen. Four vigilance group members were said to have been killed in the attack.

A statement from acting Director Army Public Relations, Col. Sani Kukasheka Usman said: "Gallant troops of 1 Division, Nigerian Army, in a joint operation with personnel of Nigeria Police and local vigilantes have today repelled a coordinated attack by gunmen on Godogodo town of Kaduna State.

"The troops fought off the attackers and pursued them into the bush inflicting heavy casualty on them.

"The combined security team also arrested the following six suspects: Lawal Gambo, Yau Sani, Bala Amodu, Ibrahim Maikaru, Abubakar Hassan and Bashiru Isa Ciroma.

"Unfortunately, four local vigilance group members lost their lives while another nine were wounded in the course of countering the dastardly attack meant to cause more loss of lives and properties of law abiding citizens of Godogodo Town.

"The situation in Godogo Town has since returned to normalcy and efforts are ongoing to track the remaining fleeing bandits.

“We wish to reassure citizens that the effort to safeguard life and property will continue with renewed vigour until all the rampaging bandits are brought to justice.

“You are please requested to disseminate this information to the public through your esteemed medium,” Usman said..
