The police in Ogun have arrested a woman, Omolara Abosede for allegedly killing her lover, Sodiq Dauda.

It was gathered that the live-in-lovers' wedding had been fixed for December.

The suspect, who stabbed the deceased with a knife, said she did it in self defense.

According to her, Dauda had broken a bottle to stab her before she grabbed the knife from the kitchen and stabbed him.

Trouble was said to have started after the suspect didn't render proper account of a gas business established by the man.

During interrogation, the woman said she was beaten up and sent packing, adding that she returned to the house on the instruction of her mother-in-law, who said she would settle the matter.

But immediately she got to the house, the suspect claimed that the deceased pounced on her without mercy and broke a bottle to stab her.

"It was then I took a kitchen knife and stabbed him by the rib. Policemen took him to Ijebu-Ode General Hospital, where he died the next day," she stated.

Contacted, the command's spokesman, Abimbola Oyeyemi, an Assistant Superintendent of Police (ASP), said his boss, Ahmed Iliyasu has directed that the woman be transferred to the homicide section of the State Criminal Investigation and Intelligence Department (SCIID) for further investigation.
