An 18-year-old mechanic apprentice, Saliman Rafiu, has been stabbed to death at Oke Kenera in Ogbomoso, Oyo State.

He was allegedly stabbed by a vulcaniser, Ezekiel Oyewole, 20, during a brawl over the battery of mobile phones being charged at a charging point near their workshop.

The deceased was said to have accused Oyewole of changing his phone battery where both were charging their phones.

During the brawl, the suspect allegedly stabbed the deceased in the neck with a pair of scissors.

The victim was rushed to the Bowen University Teaching Hospital, Ogbomoso, where he died.

The body has been deposited at the hospital mortuary.

Police spokesman Adekunle Ajisebutu said Oyewole has been arrested by detectives from the Owode-Ogbomoso Division.
