Mr James Ojogbane and family has sued the Abuja Environmental Protection Board (AEPB) before an FCT High Court, Jabi for allegedly causing the death of his wife, Mrs Mary James, on September 1, 2015.

Join in the suit by Ojogbane, a retired Police officer, were Isah Umar, Ibrahim Ahmed, both workers of the AEPB, and Chima Emokah, a neighbour.

The plaintiff had told the court through his lawyer, Mr Emmanuel Onoja, that the push on his wife by the environmental staff led to her death.

According to Onoja, Emokah lodged a complaint at the AEPB against Ojogbane and family, saying their goat was disturbing them.

Onoja said Emokah particularly complained of his car park, which he said the goat usually defecated on.

He said the AEPB staff began investigations on the premises following the report.

According to Onoja, one of the AEPB task force officials pushed the deceased under the guise of enforcing environmental law in the FCT.

Onoja said the push on the woman made her to fall and she was immediately rushed to the Wuse General Hospital where she died same day.

However, AEPB counsel, Mr Azih Collins, told the court that an earlier notice was issued to the Ojogbane family to remove the goat from the premises.

Collins said the notice was given to the family on August 25, 2015, after the AEPB task force carried out investigation on the premises.
