A newly-wedded woman has burnt herself and her husband to death at their 54 Middle Road, Sabon Gari, Kano, residence.

She was said to have died moments after while the husband died at an undisclosed hospital.

Sources said the woman reportedly set fire to a keg of petrol after receiving a call on her husband's phone from an unidentified lady, about 12am yesterday.

A co-tenant, Mr. Emmanuel Okorie, who identified the late husband as Emeka, said the couple hailed from Anambra State.

The couple tied the knot five weeks ago at the village and the woman carried a seven months' pregnancy. She joined the husband in Kano three weeks ago.

Okorie, who could not say whether the alleged phone conversation led to the dispute, said Emeka confided in him that his mother imposed the woman on him.

He added that it took the intervention of the men of the fire service to put off the fire.

Police spokesman Musa Magaji Majiya said investigations have begun into the matter.

“The incident resulted from a fire outbreak in a four-storey building at No. 54 Middle Road, Sabon Gari, Fagge Local Government. When the fire started, the woman’s husband tried to rescue her through the window.

When all attempts to rescue her failed, the woman ran into the toilet and shut the door. She suffocated to death while the husband sustained severe burns. A co-tenant also died,” Majiya said.

The bodies have been deposited at an undisclosed morgue by policemen from the Mansland Division.
