Igbira youths living in Isua, headquarters of Akoko Southeast Local Government Area of Ondo State have protested the alleged killing of their compatriot, said to be a commercial driver.

They threatened to set ablaze a police station in the town.

Sources said the deceased had a minor disagreement with policemen on patrol on Ifira-Isua Road, where kidnapping and robbery have been rampant.

The Divisional Police Officer (DPO) in charge of the area, Abiodun Ojediran, a Superintendent of Police (SP), said the driver had an argument with the policemen and slumped in the process.

He was reportedly rushed to a nearby hospital where he was confirmed dead due to “cardiac arrest”, according to hospital sources.

It was learnt that the intervention of the Area Commander for Akoko, Razak Rauf, an Assistant Commissioner of Police (ACP), doused the tension on the youths’ attempted to attack = the police and their office.

The aggrieved youths allegedly planned to set the police station on fire, but later smashed the windows.

Soldiers at Isua military check-point restored normalcy to the area.

Also, another person, Tobi Omoare, was reportedly stabbed to death at Iwaro-Oka in Akoko Southwest Local Government Area.

The suspect was apprehended at Oba-Akoko.

The Divisional Police Officer (DPO) in Oba-Akoko, Olu Fabuluje, handed him over to the DPO for Iwaro Division.

Also, at Iwaro-Oka, an expectant mother who engaged in a brawl with another woman, slumped and died when her assailant beat her with a stick.

The chairman of Akoko Southwest Local Government Area, Augustine Oloruntogbe, who confirmed the incidents, accused DPO for Iwaro of alleged complicity and poor handling of security matters in the area.
