A middle-aged man, Godfrey Onagba, was at the weekend stabbed to death during a quarrel with a rival group over who would emerge as the president-general of the community.

The Nation learnt that the victim, an Ewu indigene in Ughelli South Local Government of Delta State, died at the Ughelli Central Hospital, Ughelli, where he was taken to after he was attacked by his assailants.

Sources said the deceased, a loyalist to the embattled community President General, Ogaga Etaiga, was attacked on the eve of the community's annual conference, which would herald the beginning of a new executive.
