A 300 level student of Computer Science, Imo State University, Owerri, Jennifer Agomuo, has allegedly committed suicide after stabbing her boyfriend simply identified as Johnson.

Sources said the duo were always together on the campus and at social gatherings before Jennifer started suspecting her boyfriend of cheating on her.

The Nation learnt that the incident occurred in a hostel at Aladinma Alliance area of the university on Wednesday night.

A source said the female undergraduate poisoned herself after stabbing her boyfriend, who she thought was dead.

The source said: “A student in our school has committed suicide. She was studying Computer Science and was supposed to graduate next year. She was in third year.

“She poisoned herself after stabbing her boyfriend. She thought that she had killed her boyfriend and out of fear, she ran to her hostel and drank poison.

“Her boyfriend, who was taken to the Federal Medical Centre, Owerri, did not die. He is recuperating.”

Confirming the incident, the university spokesman, Obi Njoku, said the school was in a state of shock and confusion over the “sad and irritating news.”
