A MAN, simply identified as Harrison Mukoro, was yesterday morning found dead at Emevor community in Isoko North Local Government Area of Delta State.

There were cuts all over his body.

Although no member of the community could volunteer information about the deceased or the circumstances surrounding his death, the police command suspected that the killing was cult-related.

People refused to comment on the incident. The community has been in fear since the discovery of the body.

Police Commissioner Mr. Adeyinka Adeleke said on the phone that the incident resembled a cult-related killing.

He said the victim was killed with an axe, adding that investigation was on.
