Two students of the Rivers State University (RSU), Diobu, Port Harcourt, are feared killed in a two-day attack suspected to be cult related.

Although the police command confirmed the death of one, Prince Barisua Tuaka, a final year student in the Department of Forestry and Environment, Faculty of Agriculture, one other student was allegedly killed in another cult attack on the campus.

Command spokesman Nnamdi Omoni, who confirmed Tuaka's killing to The Nation on Tuesday, said he was shot in the head on Monday by a suspected rival cult member, and was taken to a nearby hospital where he died.

He said: "I can confirm the death yesterday (Monday), of a student, Prince Tuaka.

"He was a 500 level student of RSU from Khana Local Government of Rivers State. He was shot on the campus. We are suspecting cult activity. However, peace has been restored, as security has been tightened."
