The police in Enugu State on Monday found the body of a commercial driver abducted by suspected herdsmen, after killing a Catholic priest, Rev Fr Paul Offu, last Thursday.

The deceased, whose name was given as Kenneth Igwe, was returning from Awgu to Enugu after dropping passengers when he ran into the herdsmen who were then attacking the priest.

After shooting the priest, they dragged the man out his car into the bush.

The police, who had been on their trail with the assistance of a vigilance group, found Igwe's body where it was dumped.

The command has swung into action to arrest the culprits.

Command's spokesman Ebere Amaraizu confirmed the development.
