

Cult suspects kill final year student

•Residents blame police for youth's death

by Precious Igbonwelundu August 30, 2019

Gunmen suspected to be cultists have killed a final year student of the Federal College of Education (Technical), Akoka in Lagos State.

The Nation learnt that the incident occurred on Wednesday evening.

The victim, Samuel Ajayi, the only child of his parents, was said to have been trailed to a canteen in the school and shot in the neck as he was stepping out of the canteen.

Ajayi was the fifth person to be killed on Wednesday in a resumed clash between members of Aye and Eiye cults at Oworonshoki, Akoka and their environs.

Read Also: Four feared killed as suspected cultists resume clash

It was gathered that his killers, suspected to be members of a rival cult, had stormed the school during students' final sign-out, announcing their presence with sporadic gunshots.

The assailants, it was gathered, left shortly after the gunshots, only to return later for Ajayi said to have gone to the canteen to eat.

It was learnt that policemen were later invited and they removed his body.

His parents, it was gathered, ran to the school when the news of the incident reached them.

Tags: Nigeria News Nigerian Newspapers The Nation newspaper

---

Previous Post

'APC will form next government in Anambra'

Next Post

Gunmen kill Catholic priest in Taraba state