

Woman axed to death in Ondo community

November 9, 2019

Damisi Ojo, Akure

Tragedy struck at Sabo Area, Ugbe, Akoko North East local government area of Ondo state when a middle-aged woman, popularly called ‘Mama Olobi,’ was reportedly axed to death in the night.

The house where the incident happened was few metres to a popular church in the town, where sympathisers besieged to mourn the woman.

According to one of the mourners, the axe that was used to kill the woman, Mrs Bosede Yakubu, 68 was still hanging on her head as at the press time.

The deceased was said to be in the pools of her blood.

‘Mama olobi’ was described by neighbours as very hardworking and helpful to many people.

She was an indigene of Ikare Akoko.

Read Also; IGP redeploys senior police officers

Police sources said it was the children of the late woman that came to complain that their mother was axed to death in the night.

It was an ambulance of Ikare Specialist Hospital that was used to convey the corpse of the woman to the hospital morgue.

The Chief Medical Director, Dr Wale Oguntuase confirmed the incident.

Police have already commenced full-scale investigation as occupants of the house at Sabo-Ugbe had been quizzed.

Her neighbours within the vicinity were said to have deserted the place for fear of being arrested by security agents.

Previous Post

Osinbajo lays foundation for Kajola wagon
assembly plant

Next Post

Activists protest at DSS over Sowore