A 35-YEAR-OLD man Samuel Kalu has been killed by gunmen in Aba, the commercial nerve of Abia State.

Kalu was said to have returned from Malaysia a few days before he was killed.

He was on his way home after a haircut when he was gunned down, The Nation learnt.

Cult killings have been rife in the commercial city for four months, the reporter found out.

“It is not up to one month that a similar incident happened somewhere at Agu Road. We don’t have security here,” a resident said.

“We are pleading with the state government to improve security around this place. “

Police spokesman Geoffrey Ogbonna could not be reached for comments before press time, but a police source said the incident was being investigated.
