

Ex-NNPC manager killed in Imo home

November 18, 2020 in City Beats, News, News Update

0

Damian Duruiheoma, Owerri

A FORMER manager with the Nigerian National Petroleum Corporation (NNPC), Chief Gregory Duruiheakor, has been killed by suspected assassins.

Duruiheakor was shot at his home in New Owerri area of Owerri, the Imo State capital.

He hailed from Atta in Njaba Local Government Area.

The Nation gathered that the hoodlums broke into the compound Monday night.

Read Also: Imo Assembly impeaches Speaker Collins

One of his kinsmen confirmed the incident. "We are still shocked about Chief Duruiheakor's death. Information we got is that they shot him in the chest and he died immediately. It is sad and we have called on the police to investigate this."

Police spokesman Orlando Ikeokwu confirmed the incident. He said Duruiheakor died before he got to the hospital.