POLICE have killed two suspected armed robbers in a shoot-out in Imo.

The incident reportedly happened on Monday in the robbers' hideout in Obiapko, Ohaji-Egbema council of the state.

Police spokesman Michael Abattam said the suspects were behind the attack on Njaba police station and the killing of a police inspector.

"Due to the superior firing power of the police, two of the hoodlums were neutralised.

"A locally-made double-barrel pump action gun was recovered from the scene," he said.
