TWO second-year students of the Kwara State University (KWASU) have been found dead in their hostel room.

The students, Tobiloba Daniel and Arewa Abayomi, were found naked.

Daniel and Abayomi, said to be lovers, were writing their exams before the incident.

A student told The Nation: "We suspect there were lovers and we became concerned when they were not seen during the ongoing examination in the university and also in their class for three days.

"It was when some of their friends got to their hostel outside the school that they found them both dead and naked. We suspect it's a case of poisoning."

KWASU's spokesperson Hajia Saeedat Aliyu said there is no official communication on the matter.

Police spokesman Ajayi Okasanmi confirmed the incident.

He said, "The information was that the two of them were found dead in their room and the police were alerted.

"Our officers pulled down the door and they were taken to the University of Ilorin Teaching Hospital (UITH) for autopsy. Investigation into the matter is ongoing."
