

Man abuses enhancers, dies in sex romp

Mike Odiegwu, Port Harcourt

A man identified simply as Otubong, has died in a sex romp with an unidentified lady in a hotel room after abusing sex enhancers.

Otubong's corpse was discovered on Friday morning in his hotel room located at Osina Street, Mile 2 area of Diobu Port Harcourt, Rivers State.

The deceased, who was a barber, was said to have lodged in the hotel with a lady, who is now at large, on Thursday night.

A source in the area, who spoke in confidence, said sachets of tramadol and energy drinks (Black Bullet) were found in the room.

The source said the lady absconded before the corpse was discovered.

Another source, who identified himself simply as Prince said: "Information available to me indicates that the lady who was with the man before his death was dating another guy.

"The lady, who absconded told the former guy that he was not satisfying her in bed and broke the relationship after she had 'tasted' the new guy not knowing that the deceased was using different kinds of drugs to improvise performance to impress the lady."

A police source said that two Black Bullet drinks, two packs of tramadol and another sex enhancing drug were found at the scene.

The incident had been reported to Azikiwe Divisional Police headquarters, Illabouchi, Mile 2 Diobu.

However, the Police Public Relations Officer (PPRO) of the Rivers State Police Command SP Grace Iringe Koko, had yet to confirm the report.
