Teacher remanded for flogging pupil to death in Anambra

The primary school teacher, Faith Nwoye, who flogged her eight-year old pupil, Henry Chukwuemeka Okonkwo, to death at Landmark International School, Mgbakwu, Awka North Local Government Area of Anambra State has been remanded in a Correctional Centre.

The suspect, Mrs Faith Nwoye, was remanded after hearing of the matter in a Special Court handling women and children-related matters.

The matter had earlier been charged to court following a petition forwarded to the Commissioner for Education, Prof Ngozi Chuma-Udeh, against the school's Proprietor, Mrs Promise Iloh, and the teacher, by Mr Ojiakor Okonkwo.

The matter was eventually handed over to the Police for investigation.

The Commissioner had directed immediate closure of the school, citing its illegal operations.

“As soon as the Police are done with the investigation, the teacher would face other institutions against child rights.

“She is going to have the full wrath of the law brought upon her over her actions,” she said.
