Sources, who confirmed the development to our reporter last night said the troops comprising Nigerian Navy Special Boats Services (SBS) elements and the Nigerian Army Special Forces have been combing Fakai forests and other hideouts in Shinkafi to flush bandits' remnants and rescue hostages.

Turji's reign of terror in Zamfara and other Northwestern states has continued since he parted ways with his former boss Halilu Sububu, who was killed by troops last September.

Turji's gang not only rustled cattle and kidnapped locals for ransom but also raped vulnerable women and killed men who attempted to protect their dignity.
