

Villagers rescue 13-year-old girl from Enugu killer-native doctor, set houses ablaze

- Two decomposing bodies recovered from shrine
- Prime suspect fled, three others arrested

Members of Umumba Ndiagu community in Ezeagu Local Government Area of Enugu State, have rescued a 13-year-old girl from kidnappers.

A native doctor and prominent member of the community, High Chief Levi Onyeka Obieze, alias “Ezeani” and “E-Dey-Play-E-Dey-Show,” has fled his community with his wives after the girl, two decomposing bodies, one expectant, were discovered in a soakaway pit under the shrine in his compound.

The girl was abducted the previous day by men suspected to be Ezeani’s accomplices.

The act, it was gathered, caused outrage in the village as they set the houses of the accused ablaze.

Read Also: FG to equip 12 universities with high-fibre internet, 24-hour electricity

A can of worms opened for the native doctor when a chilling discovery was made after a young girl was abducted on Monday by two men while she was accompanying her father to the farm.

Related News

- Enugu gets 2025 NAFEST hosting rights
- Court reverses lawyer's conviction
- JUST IN: Enugu LP Rep member, 1000 others defect to APC

According to a source, the assailants used deception to carry out the abduction.

“The little girl was walking with her father to the farm on Monday when two men riding on a motorcycle stopped and pretended that their motorcycle had developed faults.

“One of the men told the father of the little girl to help them with his cutlass to use and fix the fault in the motorcycle, which the man obliged. They said the fault would require pushing the bike and begged him to help. It was in this process that one of the men grabbed the girl and jumped onto the motorcycle, and they zoomed off.

“The father raised an alarm, prompting the local vigilante group to launch a search. Later that evening, villagers reported hearing loud cries from a nearby bush,’ he added.