Road's end for serial rapist

Saturday, 15 May 2010 04:14 | Daily Trust

Until Monday last week, residents of Badawa Quarters detested the hot weather for two reasons: the pain of having to sleep outside their houses to enjoy fresh air and the risk of leaving their wives behind to be raped by a serial rapist, who for years, held the community to ransom. The dilemma, however, ended when on that fateful day, people in the area arrested one Umar Ka Fada Kwata, after he allegedly entered the house of one Malam Ali Uba and attempted to rape his wife, while he threatened to slit her throat with a sharp knife should she dare cry for help. Ka Fada Kwata, investigations revealed, is a member of Police Special Constabulary Force.

Ka Fada Kwata, according to Malam Uba, would have succeeded in committing his act if not for the doggedness of his wife, who defied the sharpness of his knife and screamed for help. Narrating how the wife's sharp cry gave him inkling of the danger she was facing at that time, Malam Uba recalled that he was sleeping outside his house because of intense heat, while his wife slept in her room. "It was about dawn when I heard her shouting, so I quickly dashed into the house where I found him trying to escape, over the wall," he explained.

He said when he entered the house, he met the strongly-built man brandishing a sharp knife. Malam Ali said he dared the weapon and muscular appearance of the intruder, saying: "I charged into him and tripped him using my leg." When the villain was finally reined in and brought him out of the residence to the full glare of the public, he was seized by an angry crowd and tied to an electric pole, where he continued to shout "I'm not a thief," repeatedly. The crowd pounced on the suspect and dealt him heavy blows using various weapons until Ka Fada Kwata fell into coma after he had defecated all over his body.

Apart from Malam Ali who alleged that the victim had on two previous occasions attempted to rape his wife after he had scaled a fence into his house, other residents of the area also attested that the suspect have made similar attempts on their spouses.

Several women in the area have been raped by an unidentified person while their husbands are not on hand, residents of the quarters told Weekly Trust, even as they said there was enough reason to believe that Ka Fada Kwata was the perpetrator.

Similarly, the Ward Head of Badawa Quarters, Alhaji Halliru Ahmad, confirmed to Weekly Trust the threat to the security of the area which Ka Fada Kwata constituted before his eventual arrest.

It was learnt that members of the community have been devising means of apprehending the serial rapist who has been evading them for years. Ka Fada Kwata was said to be married to three women with children. When Weekly Trust visited the scene, the suspect was lying on the floor, still. He was later moved away by police. When Weekly Trust contacted the Kano Police Command Police Public Relations Officer, SP Baba Mohammed Azare on phone over the matter, he said he had not yet been briefed on the matter.
