AN officer of the Nigeria Customs Service is currently facing trial for shooting a lady while pursuing a suspected vehicle on Ilashe area, Idiroko/Owode, Ipokia Local Government Area of Ogun State recently.

The incident as narrated by the Customs Public Relations Officer, Ogun State command, Chike Ngige, happened on Thursday morning, around 6.00 a.m.

“Our patrol team on information patrol on Ilashe area of Idiroko/Owodo Road accosted a suspected vehicle.

“The driver of the vehicle tried to escape, to avoid proper Customs checks and that prompted one of the patrol officers to aim the tyre of the vehicle to demobilise it.

“The bullet re-bounded on the hard surface of the road and hit a lady inside another vehicle.

“The lady was immediately rushed to the Customs clinic at Idiroko, but she died shortly after arrival at the clinic,” he said.

According to the Customs PRO, the officer had been identified and was under detention, while the command was addressing the situation.

“The controller has constituted an orderly room trial panel to interrogate the officer to ascertain his level of culpability. If he is found culpable, he will be dismissed. He will subsequently be handed over to the police for prosecution,” he said.
