TRAGEDY struck at Matogun Village in Agabado area of Ifo Local Government in Ogun State as a family of six was almost wiped out by what is suspected to be food poisoning.

Head of the family Semiu Adegbemile died, while his elder brother, who on Tuesday night came to visit the family including four others: the wife and the three children aged 7, 4 and 2 years are still in coma.

The police at Agbado divisional police station have begun investigations into the incident that threw the entire Matogun community into serious mourning.

There are however serious concerns for residents of the village, who claimed that the members of the family ate different foods and that they saw scars on the bodies of all the affected family members.

It was gathered that the village woke up on Wednesday morning to be confronted with the ugly incident, after an elderly brother of the deceased visited the village.
