THREE Ffulani herdsmen have been arrested by the police over the alleged killing of one Matthew Aniugo, aged 44, a farmer, from Ogui-Agu Eke in Udi Local Government Area of Enugu State.

Disclosing this to reporters on Tuesday, the State Police Public Relations Officer (SPPR), Ebere Amarizu, said they were investigating the matter.

The cousin to the deceased, Sergius Aliozo, who also disclosed this to newsmen on the dastardly act, stated that the deceased went to his farm on May 1, 2014 with his wife when some Fulani cattle rears invaded his farm with their cattle and his cousin withstood them.

He said unknown to Mr Aniugo, the herdsmen left but returned shortly with guns and knife. One of them shot him with a gun while the rest used machete on him and left him in his blood but his wife, Nneka was lucky as she escaped before they descended on her husband.

He said one of his uncles, Ozo Clement Aniugo, informed him about the death of their relative and alerted vigilantes as well as the police to look into the matter.

He said three days after, the vigilantes arrested the three Fulani herdsmen, the deceased's wife identified them. The culprits were subsequently handed over to the police at 9th Mile for necessary action.

According to Mr Aliozo, this was not the first time Fulani herdsmen would kill a man in their village. "Two years ago, one man was killed through similar circumstance."
