No fewer than 30 suspected members of the dreaded Boko Haram sect were on Thursday killed by vigilante youth, popularly called civilian JTF, when the sect members, in large number, armed with sophisticated weapons, attempted to lay siege on Gubio Local Government Area of Borno State.

Kareto is a community in Mobbar Local Government Area of the state and hometown of a former governor, Mohammed Goni. It is located north and about 157 kilometres, Gubio is 87 kilometres, while Mobbar, which borders Niger Republic, is 187 kilometres away from Maiduguri, the state capital.

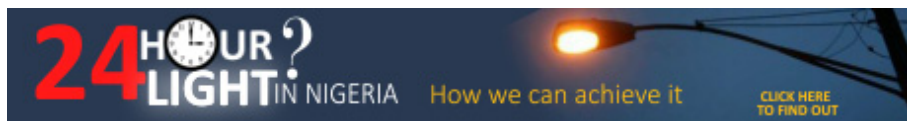

Mobbar, according to sources, was now under the control of the Boko Haram sect, after the terrorists invaded the area last Monday, November 24, leaving many killed and thousands of residents displaced.

Sources said the gunmen, using Hilux and motorcycles and armed with Ak47 rifles, improvised explosive devices and petrol bombs were sighted nearby Kareto by some good citizens, who alerted youths from Gubio and Kateto, from where they all mobilised and confronted the sect, killing 30 of them, while several others escaped into the bush with severe injuries.

Confirming the killing of the sect members by youth vigilante group, spokesman of Borno Elders' Forum, in an interview with journalists on Thursday, Mr Bulama Mali Gubio, said "there was a huge success, as 30 members of the Boko Haram sect, who attempted to overrun Kareto, Gubio and other surrounding communities, were killed by our volunteer youths.

"Already, the affected areas are now calm, as normal activities had since returned.

"I, however, want to call on the security authorities to intensify effort to crush the terrorists' activities, which had been ravaging the socio-economic activities in Borno State and other parts of the North-East subregion," Gubio stated.
