UNKNOWN gunmen have killed a deputy director of education and teacher at the Government Model College, Otukpo, Benue State, Mr Akpa Onyilo.

According to information gathered, Mr Onyilo, a father of six was said to have left his home at Oyigebe Street, on the evening of March 4, 2015 for a wake keep at the Agbenyojo area of the town, but his corpse was later found by the roadside at the GRA area, in the wee hours of the next day.

A source disclosed to the Nigerian Tribune that the corpse was allegedly picked by the Federal Road Safety Corps(FRSC) and deposited at the General Hospital in Otukpo.

It was also learnt that his head was badly damaged with his face swollen, a bizarre state which made it difficult for anyone to recognise him.

Speaking to the Nigerian Tribune at the deceased's residence, his immediate younger brother, Gabriel Ogbole Onyilo, a teacher at St Francis College, Otukpo described the death of his brother as a mystery, adding that where his corpse was found was neither close to his house or the venue of the wake keep.

"His death is a mystery to us. Where his body was found is a place he hardly goes to. We leave everything to God Almighty to judge," Gabriel Ogbole said.

The wife of the deceased, Ada Onyilo, also a teacher in the Department of Home Economics, College of Education, Oju, expressed shock at the sudden death of her husband, noting that she had left everything relating to his death in the hands of God.

The Principal of the Government College, Otukpo, Godwin Ochube described the late Onyilo as a hardworking staff who contributed immensely to the development of youths in the area through his teaching.

When contacted, the state police spokesman, Mr Austin Ezeanyi said the police was yet to be briefed on the incident.
