Many houses were set ablaze while four people were said to have been killed in a fresh attack at Balakari, a village in Chibok Local Government Area of Borno State at the weekend.

Residents told newsmen that the attackers rode on motorcycles while others came on foot to attack the village on Saturday evening. One of the residents said there was no security operative in the village when the attackers struck.

"It is only in Chibok town that soldiers are present, no soldier or police or any security was in our villages," Madu Peter, a resident who spoke on phone told newsmen in Maiduguri, Borno State.

According to them, most of the villagers had fled to Chibok town and some have fled towards Askira since the attack and many people are still planning to leave.
