ion, lack of sensitivity and inefficiency."

The Acting Head of Service acknowledged that the country is currently faced with enormous challenges that requires the Civil Service to be innovative and proactive by devising strategies and action plans that would assist the government in addressing these challenges.

According to him the former Senator exhibited a complete gentle man character while also displaying uncommon commitment and patriotism to the ideals of nationhood.

In a related development, the film industry, especially the management and staff of Nigeria Film Corporation, Jos, has lost two of its senior directors, Director Human Resources, Mr J. B Olayisade and Director of Production Consultancy, Mr George Lawal, who died on Wednesday in a motor accident while returning from a meeting in Kaduna.

Director of Media of the establishment, Mr Brian Etuk, who survived the accident, told the Nigerian Tribune from his hospital bed that the management of the NFC had gone to Kaduna on Monday for a meeting with the National Board for Technical Education (NBTE).

According to him, they were on their way back to Jos, on Wednesday, when a tyre of the vehicle they were travelling burst and the car skidded off the road, adding that the two directors died while others sustained injuries.

When the Nigerian Tribune visited the NFC in Jos, scores of people were trooping into the establishment to condole and sympathise with the state and management of the organisation.
